DC++ : Using DC++ : What does search spy do?

Question:

Answer: The search spy shows the most popular things that people search for and some other statistics. The first column is the word they've search for (what they typed into the search window) and the second column then number of times this word has been searched for.

The statistics are reset every time you close the spy window. The status bar at the bottom also shows the total number of searches while the spy was open and the average number of searches per second.
